EDITOR'S MESSAGE

This newsletter is late. Somehow, I woke up one morning, and instead of being September 1, which is the time to send out the newsletter reminder and start working on the next issue, it was October 1 instead. I believe the month of September was spent trying to vacuum up the giant piles of Labrador fur produced by my dogs. Enjoy this slightly belated newsletter, and see you all at the Specialty in a few weeks.

Natasha Gelfand, Retriever Reflections Editor

You must indicate whether or not the parents have met the Code of Ethics performance requirement (CD, one championship point, JAM, field title, WC, or GGLRC Retrieving Dog Elementary certificate).

FOUND ON THE WEB*AKC Position on Silver Labs

It is the opinion of the Labrador Retriever Club, Inc., the AKC parent club for the breed, that a silver Labrador is not a purebred Labrador retriever. The pet owning public is being duped into believing that animals with this dilute coat color are desirable, purebred and rare and, therefore, warrant special notoriety or a premium purchase price.

Over the past few years a limited number of breeders have advertised and sold dogs they represent to be purebred Labrador Retrievers with a dilute or gray coat color—hence the term “silver labs.” The AKC has accepted some of these “silver labs” for registration. Apparently, the rationale for this decision is that the silver coat color is a shade of chocolate. Interestingly, the original breeders of “silver” Labradors were also involved in the Weimaraner breed.
